

About Bruce Hall

While working as an architect and consulting on projects like the Alamo in San Antonio, the Governor's Mansion in Austin and the Astrodome-Astrohall in Houston, Bruce discovered his love of archeology as it pertains to biblical history.

Thus, later in life he decided to pursue a PhD in Biblical Archaeology and is now a candidate at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, TX. He has also earned a Masters of Divinity in Theology and has been a Pastor for 19 years. He joined the 2013 summit team in an effort to add research to his dissertation on Experimental Archaeology and assist in directing scientific efforts. Mr. Hall has been an educational speaker for national and international architectural organizations such as American Institute of Architects and International Facility Management Association. He is a devoted father and husband who loves spending time with his family.

Website: <http://www.findingnoah.com/explorers>