

About Libbe HaLevy

Producer/Host, Nuclear Hotseat

Libbe HaLevy (PRONUNCIATION: lee-BEE ha-LAY-vee) is the producer and host of Nuclear Hotseat, a weekly international news magazine on all things nuclear... from a different perspective (www.NuclearHotseat.com). Since the show debuted almost five years ago, in June of 2011 (only three months after the Fukushima nuclear disaster began), Nuclear Hotseat has grown to receive more than half a million hits in a week, and every month is downloaded in 58 countries on six continents.

Libbe is a journalist, broadcaster, and award-winning playwright who was staying with friends one mile from the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in 1979. She wrote of the experience in her book, Yes, I Glow in the Dark! One Mile from Three Mile Island to Fukushima and Beyond. Libbe is a TEDxPasadena speaker and has extensively researched nuclear radiation's impact and best practices to help safeguard our health against it for Radiation Awareness Protection Talk (www.RAPTawareness.com). She is an internationally sought-after expert on the impact of nuclear technology on our lives, and is available for speeches, trainings, interviews, and consultations to the media, individuals, groups, and companies doing business in or with Japan and other countries
